

Request for Listing on ODAFF Pesticide Sensitive Location Viewer

With the increase in the number of people growing specialty crops, organic farms and beekeepers in Oklahoma there is a corresponding increased risk that pesticide drift damage will occur. To address these situations the Oklahoma Department of Agriculture, Food and Forestry has established a registry of specialty crops growers, organic farms and beekeepers, endangered species, and pesticide restricted areas that can be used by pesticide applicators to reduce the risk of off target pesticide exposure.

The Registry is voluntary and will be hosted on ODAFF's website. The Registry will be populated with the locations of sensitive crop growers, organic farms, apiary locations, and pesticide applicators. The Registry and viewer will help pesticide applicators identify locations where extra care should be taken to protect vulnerable crops, endangered species and honey bees from pesticide exposure.

For a sensitive crop site to be listed on the Oklahoma Department of Agriculture Food and Forestry sensitive crop registry website, the following criteria must be met:

- The crop is grown for commercial purposes and represents a legitimate source of income for the grower.
- The crop - grapes, cotton or tomatoes - is known for its propensity to be economically damaged by herbicides that volatilize readily.
- If it is an organic crop, it must be produced under an organic certification program.
- It is one of the following, pecan grove or orchard, peach orchard, watermelon field on plant nursery.
- The grower requests that we publicize the location on ODAFF's website.

This is a voluntary program and the information you provide will be used on the website.

Use the form below to register your pesticide sensitive crop. Please print, complete and sign the bottom of the form and return it to:

Bill Taylor
Plant Industry and Consumer Services
Oklahoma Department of Agriculture, Food and Forestry
2800 N. Lincoln Blvd.
Oklahoma City, OK 73105

Herbicide-sensitive crops include vineyards, cotton, tomatoes, certified organic crops and greenhouse crops. We also are placing pecan groves or orchards, peach orchards, and melon (water and cantaloupe) fields to the viewer in 2009. Other crops may be included and will be reviewed on a case-by-case basis.

The locations of sensitive crops and apiaries must be adequately identified. Provide a legal description, or the latitude and longitude of the field or apiary and the address or detailed directions.. The objective is to give persons using herbicides information they need to avoid damage to your herbicide-sensitive crop or pesticide sensitive apiaries.
