Doug Devitre Presents
Dynamic Delivery Devices for Real Estate Instructors

Doug Devitre

Doug started his professional career in his Mom's basement studying, learning and soaking up whatever he could. In his first three months in business he sold a million dollars of real estate with 9 transactions. In his first two years in business, he earned 10 professional certifications including his CRS, ABR and GRI.

Doug was not a computer geek as a kid. Other than Atari and Nintendo, he didn't develop his passion for technology until college. He won the Entrepreneur of the Year award at the University of Missouri for an innovative application approach to resumes. The mouse had gotten the taste of cheese. He then started to explore how to take a techno-approach to teaching real estate.

Doug is going to share affordable, flexible and easy to implement solutions even for the most frazzled, technologically challenged instructor as well as for those who would never think of going to the bathroom in the middle of the night without checking their e-mail.

Doug lives in St. Louis, has a great girl friend and has killed his four plants. His goals are to cook more often, stop the plant abuse, and travel the world learning while he teaches, while making his Mom proud.
