 - k. inform the party for whom the Broker is providing services that the party may be vicariously liable for the acts and omissions of the Broker; and
 - l. comply with all requirements of the Oklahoma Real Estate Code and all applicable statutes and rules.

- 2. Difference in Role of Transaction Broker. A Transaction Broker has all the duties and responsibilities of a Single-Party Broker except for the duties and responsibilities of:
 - a. performing all brokerage activities for the benefit of the party for whom the Broker is performing services,
 - b. obeying the specific directions of the party for whom the Broker is performing services that are not contrary to law or the contract between parties, and
 - c. keeping the party for whom the Broker is performing services informed regarding the transaction. A Transaction Broker does not provide services for the benefit of a party, but assists in the transaction. In addition, a party for whom a transaction Broker is performing services is not vicariously liable for the acts or omissions of Broker.

- 3. Confidential Information that can not be disclosed by Broker. The following information is considered confidential, and Broker will not disclose: (a) that a party is willing to pay more or accept less than what is being offered; (b) that a party is willing to agree to financing terms that are different from those offered; and (c) motivating factors of a party purchasing, selling, leasing, optioning or exchanging the Property. Confidential information may be disclosed if consent is granted by the party disclosing the information, the disclosure is required by law, or the information is made public or becomes public as the result of actions from a source other than the Broker.

- 4. Consent Requested to Perform Services as a Transaction Broker in Certain Situations.
 - a. In the event that the Broker has entered into a single-party Broker Agreement with both parties to a potential transaction, the Broker is required to obtain the consent of either one or both parties to become a Transaction Broker for purposes of that transaction. This situation occurs when the Broker has listed a property for sale as a Single-Party Broker and also provides services as a Single-Party Broker to another party who desires to purchase that property. In such a transaction, the Broker as a Single-Party Broker will perform services for more than one party whose interest could be different or even adverse, and such a transaction requires the Broker to seek the consent of each party to such transaction to permit a change in the brokerage relationship.

b. By giving consent the:

- party will allow the Broker to change its relationship from performing services as a Single-Party Broker to performing services as a Transaction Broker in this transaction;
- Broker will no longer provide services for the benefit of the party, but may only assist in such transaction;
- Broker will not be obligated to obey the specific directions of a party but will assist all parties to such a transaction;
- party will not be vicariously liable for the acts of the Broker and associated licensees in such transaction; and,
- Broker's obligation to keep confidential information received from the party confidential is not affected.

Notice: A party to this transaction is not required to consent to the change in brokerage relationship and independent advice may be sought. Please indicate consent or non-consent:

_____ Non-Consent. The undersigned does not consent to the change by the Broker from a Single-Party Broker to a Transaction Broker in such transaction and understands that if neither party gives consent, the Broker shall withdraw from providing services to all but one party to such a transaction.

5. Broker Limited Service Requirement. If a Single-Party Broker intends to perform fewer services than those required to complete a transaction, written disclosure shall be provided to the party for whom the broker is providing services. Such disclosure shall include a description of those steps in the transaction for which the broker will not perform, and also state that the broker assisting the other party is not required to provide assistance with these steps in any manner.
