Active Threat Assessment Training for Law Enforcement (Online)

The Threat Awareness training program is an 8-hour online training providing knowledge, tools, and techniques to identify and react to behavioral indicators of threat.

The program is designed for all law enforcement officers who have a mission of observing, interacting with, and protecting the public. Our active threat assessment methodology involves systematically assessing environments, identifying suspicious individuals (also known as a person of interest), and evaluating the extent these persons are a threat.

OBJECTIVES

By the end of the program, trainees will:

1. have a working knowledge of the terms and concepts associated with active threat assessment;
2. be able to assess a behavioral baseline using the Behavioral Baseline Instrument (BBI);
3. be able to identify the roles, deviations, and objectives of those they are observing;
4. be able to identify behavioral threat indicators and their relevance to the baselining process; and
5. be able to assess a baseline, identify a Person of Interest (POI), and recognize a potential threat.

BACKGROUND

The behaviors represented in this program were identified by law enforcement officers from agencies throughout the United States and were validated through research by Social Scientists under the auspices of the Just Doesn't Look Right (JDLR) Project. The JDLR Project was supported by the Rapid Reaction Technology Office of the Office of the Secretary of Defense.

The online program is comprised of four courses. All courses include a mix of lectures, videos, and video-based exercises.

- Course 1: Trainees are provided an introduction to the overall program.
- Course 2: Trainees learn to systematically observe their environment using our baselining process and the Behavioral Baseline Instrument (BBI).
- Course 3: Trainees learn about the different behavioral threat indicators.
- Course 4: Trainees are given further opportunity to test their skills and merge what is learned from Course 1, 2, and 3.

There are four theory examinations and three practical examinations. Trainees must pass each course with an average of 80% to proceed. The program uses iterative and compounding practice exercises and material to meet program objectives. Trainees are repeatedly evaluated through theory and practical exams throughout the program. A certificate is provided after completion.

Trainees are provided with takeaway materials for their use and have access to the program for the remaining term of their license. A supplemental 45-minute online refresher training is available. We recommend it is taken 3 to 6 months after 8-hour program completion.
