Mr. Rooker reported on the Shawnee tornado that occurred on May 19 and stated that the Shawnee community feels forgotten and overshadowed by the attention given to the Moore disaster. There was a tremendous amount of damage done to the area.

USDA-Natural Resources Conservation Service: Gary O'Neill, State Conservationist, provided a written report outlining NRCS outreach activities. He then stated that they received their budget allocation and it is bare bones.

Mr. O'Neill also reported on program sign-ups and funding. The Conservation Security Program sign-up ends on June 14. He stated there are 12.5 million acres authorized nationwide. The program is popular in Oklahoma and is one where the NRCS could earn additional Technical Assistance funds. NRCS has applied for $2.5 million additional funds for the Environmental Quality Incentive Program. The sign-up for the Wetlands Reserve Program and the Grasslands Reserve Program ended on May 31.

The Emergency Watershed Protection program received $500,000 for tornado debris removal. There are three potential sites in Lincoln County. Flooding from the May 31 storm will also be looked at and Mr. O'Neill is hopeful funds will be available to help Canadian County as well. Mr. O'Neill stated that an allocation has not been received for watershed rehabilitation.

Mr. O'Neill stated there are still several unknowns regarding the Contributions Agreement; however, he will make every effort to honor all agreements with the Commission and conservation districts.

Mr. O'Neill commended Mr. Pollard on his years of service. He first met Mr. Pollard in 2005 and discovered they have in common graduating from Ponca City High School.

CHAIR

6/2/2013

From Christine Reid, Kingfisher:

Here's the story that ran in today's paper:

As the first structures are demolished in Kingfisher's floodplain acquisition project, an Oklahoma City TV station aired a critical report, which the city manager and project coordinators said was "riddled with factual errors."

"From the limited coverage of it that I viewed, it was quite evident that thorough research and acceptable standards of true journalism were not applied, as a very small percentage of it was fact and a majority of it was speculation," City Manager Dave Sleziecky said. "It was disheartening to see an external entity attempt to conjure speculation for a program that started on behalf of citizen efforts within the community to prevent damages and mitigate loss due to flooding."

The TV report, which also was published on the Internet under the headline, "Rural Water Dam Bond Money Misused," claimed that the $4 million in state bond money earmarked for Kingfisher County flood control was intended for dam construction, not property purchases, that "city leaders" are receiving preferential treatment in the buyout and that failure to construct dams leaves city residents at risk for future floods.

However, none of those claims is borne out by documents reviewed by the Times and Free Press or the historical record.

"This is a voluntary program which was opened to 83 residential and nonresidential properties based on the greatest flood risk," Rita Henze, planning and real estate specialist with Meshek and Associates, which is managing the buyout.

"The prioritization of properties was based solely on flood depths and frequency of flooding with no consideration of ownership or type of structures (other than that the structures were inhabitable at the time)."

Kingfisher's flood history

Current attention is focused on the most recent major event, the August 2007 flood when remnants of Hurricane Erin brought a 500-year event, causing nearly $20 million in damage to homes and businesses.

However, Kingfisher County in general and the City of Kingfisher in particular have a long history of flooding, over 60 years of documented flood events and over $55 million (in today's dollars) in documented flood losses.

Repetitive flooding in the nine-year period from 1946-55 caused $34 million in property damage and agricultural losses in today's dollars and created at least one major health event when water quality was impaired and 2,500 vaccinations were administered to prevent a typhoid outbreak.

The number of studies and proposed flood control measures over the decades are almost as numerous as the floods themselves, according to a synopsis prepared in 2009 by the City of Kingfisher, with assistance from the Oklahoma Conservation Commission and the Natural Resources Conservation Service.

In 1957, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers designed a levee encircling the city to protect it from floodwaters, a proposal which failed due to lack of local support.

In 1959, the Soil Conservation Service (now the Natural Resources Conservation Service) completed a feasibility study recommending about 40 dams along the Kingfisher Creek Watershed, estimated to control about 50 percent of the drainage area. The plan was scuttled in the face of local opposition from the Upstream Farmers Association, which opposed dams on their property.

In 1983, a U.S. Corps of Engineers flood study demonstrated estimated flood damages, measured in today's dollars, of $304,520 annually to residential structures and content in both the Kingfisher Creek and Uncle John Creek watersheds and $263,160 annual damage to commercial structures.

In 1985, NRCS studied a proposed system of 17 dams on the Kingfisher Creek Watershed, but only five of the dams were estimated to provide flood damage control benefits in excess of their construction costs.

The five dams would control only 14 percent of the drainage area and provide only limited relief to the City of Kingfisher and were never constructed due to landowner opposition.

The feasibility study was updated in 1989 and 1995, when the number of dams that could be economically justified on the Kingfisher Creek Watershed based on a cost-benefit analysis dropped to four and landowner opposition remained strong. Meanwhile, 12 dams were constructed on the Uncle John Creek Watershed, which provided 51-percent control of the drainage area and a significant reduction in flooding along that watershed.

Post 2007 efforts

After the devastating 2007 flood, a local flood control committee was formed, with Brian Walter, whose downtown hardware store sustained repeated flood damage, as chairman.

Working with then-City Manager Richard Reynolds, Walter and other committee members met with then-State Sen. Mike Johnson seeking state funding for local flood control measures.

The result was a $4 million slice of a $25 million bond issue approved by the legislature in 2009 for statewide conservation efforts to be administered through the Oklahoma Conservation Commission.

Contrary to the recent TV news report, Senate Bill 238 does not limit the bond issue proceeds to building or repairing rural dams, but also permits "repair of roadside water erosion, riparian restoration and purchase of necessary equipment in various counties through and with the assistance of local conservation districts, including restoration of flood-damaged areas."

The Oklahoma Capital Improvement Authority is charged with administering the bond issue and funds were appropriated to the Oklahoma Corporation Commission, which allocated them as follows: $8.8 million for watershed rehabilitation, $7.1 million for watershed operation and maintenance, $4 million for Kingfisher flood protection, $3 million for the Sugar Creek Watershed in Caddo County, and $2.1 million for conservation cost share funds directed to conservation districts located in federally-declared flood disaster areas.

Before any funds were spent in Kingfisher, a committee, including representatives from the Kingfisher County Conservation District, county commissioners, the city, NRCS and the Oklahoma Conservation Commission, investigated flood control alternatives.

Based in part on the success of the Uncle John Creek dam project, dam construction along Kingfisher Creek was considered, but ultimately rejected as being economically infeasible and not as effective at preventing loss of life as a property buyout that would move people and structures out of the path of future flooding.

According to the committee's report released in August 2009, only four dams met the feasibility test of creating a benefit equal to or greater than their cost and only two of those had landowner support.

"These few dams would have limited effect on reducing flooding in Kingfisher," the report stated.

At that time, the cost to construct the four dams was estimated at a combined total of more than $10 million, according to the report.

Before abandoning dam construction as its first priority, the city commissioned another study by Monsoon Associates, a private hydrology-engineering firm, which reached the same conclusion about the relative ineffectiveness of dam construction.

Monsoon concluded even if all 17 dams originally planned for the Kingfisher Creek Watershed had been in place in August 2007, water levels at U.S. 81 in Kingfisher would have been reduced by only 2.3 feet.

"No combination of dams reduces the water surface elevations in town enough so that properties do not flood," Henze of Meshek and Associates said. "Many of the properties that flooded in 2007 had five feet of water in them and water in excess of four feet deep remained in the downtown area for days.

"By moving people out of harm's way, they are not subject to future flooding."

Maximizing the benefit

Once moving people and businesses out of the floodplain was adopted as the first priority in the effort to prevent future flood damage and injuries, the city hired Meshek and Associates to manage the project.

The firm identified 126 properties located within the city limits at greatest risk of future flooding and prioritized them according to flood depth and frequency, Henze said.

Based on the amount of available funding and projected cost, 83 high-risk residential and nonresidential properties with flood depths of two to more than six feet were identified.

After all 83 property owners were invited to a public meeting in December 2010 to discuss the acquisition program and encourage their participation, 48 owners opted to proceed.

The city quadrupled its purchasing power through a successful application for a $5.8 million federal hazard mitigation grant, using the remainder of the $4 million state allocation as matching funds.

Henze said the grant will allow the city to acquire and clear up to 48 properties in Phase 1 of the voluntary acquisition plan, plus potentially an additional 29 properties in a proposed Phase 2, compared to only 19 properties which could have been purchased with what remained of the $4 million in state bond funds.

(A portion of the $4 million has already been spent on a drainage improvement project to promote more efficient storm water runoff in the West Bottom area.)

No preferential treatment

While the TV report suggests that "city leaders" are receiving special treatment in the property acquisition process, Meshek said high-risk properties were prioritized for participation based strictly on their documented flooding histories.

"I do not know what [the TV station] considers to be city leaders, but there is currently only one official leader on the acquisitions list – the mayor [Jack Stuteville]," Meshek said. "No preferential treatment has been given to him and he has not asked for any."

The TV report said two of the properties owned by Stuteville are among the most expensive properties included in the buyout and will receive the biggest supplemental and relocation payments, but Henze said both payments are false.

Henze said Stuteville's properties are not eligible for supplemental benefits, which are only available to owner-occupants of residential property.

Stuteville also would not qualify for relocation payments, which can only be paid to displaced tenants.

Slezickey said the TV reporter may have been referring to estimated relocation costs for Kingfisher Kookers, one of the tenants in a Stuteville-owned building.

"They'll potentially have high relocation costs because they'll be moving heavy pieces of manufacturing equipment, so they may be entitled to a higher payment, but that wouldn't be money going to Jack," he said.

At any rate, Henze said all relocation payments are subject to federal scrutiny under the Uniform Relocation Act, and "only eligible, legal costs will be paid."

Henze also debunked the notion that the city will be purchasing abandoned buildings. "All acquisition properties are occupied or in a physical condition which would allow future occupancy," she said. "Some may appear unoccupied from the exterior, but that is not the case."

Project moving forward

Demolition began last week on the first four properties purchased in the buyout – three metal commercial buildings and Pilgrims Rest Baptist Church.

The state capital improvement authority owns the properties until the bonds are retired, but the city is responsible for mowing and maintaining the sites.

Under the terms of the FEMA grant, the properties will remain in public ownership and limited to open-space uses, such as parks or nature trails.

If the city is successful in removing the 48 structures in the first phase of its acquisition plan (owners are able to opt out up to and including the day the sale closes), an estimated 75 to 150 people will have been moved out of harm's way, Henze said.

Additionally, the project has been scrutinized at the local and state level to confirm that it falls within the parameters of the state law authorizing the original bond issue.

"We have attended multiple meetings with OCIA, OCC, Meshek and the city with an assistant state attorney general and legal counsel of all parties involved to ensure that all operations of the program were within the legal scope of the bond," Slezcickey said.

"Properties will be restored to natural and beneficial floodplain uses – riparian restoration, which falls under the legislation," Henze said.

The Natural Resources Conservation Service, (NRCS), the Oklahoma Tribal Conservation Advisory Council (OTCAC), Shawnee, Konawa and Seminole County Conservation Districts partnered to hold a workshop that provided valuable information on USDA programs and conservation training on soil health and water sources for livestock. The workshop was held on May 22, 2013 on Seminole State College Campus. The workshop provided producers, Tribes, tribal producers and women in agriculture with valuable information that they could utilize in their farming and cattle operations. NRCS soil scientist Jeremy Dennis provided a “hands on” demonstration on importance of soil health with a rainfall simulator demonstration. NRCS Agricultural Engineer, Scott Schneider, presented on Livestock Watering Systems with an emphasis on utilizing water wells. Mr. Schneider’s presentation covered many topics: the importance of having a grazing plan; considerations and criteria for water wells; considerations and criteria for utilizing solar pumps, windmills, and electric submersible pumps for water delivery; considerations for livestock watering facilities for water storage. According to Tom James, NRCS district conservationist for the Wewoka office, “the highlight of the workshop was the soil health demonstration with a rainfall simulator and the presentation on water sources for livestock.” The Oklahoma Tribal Conservation Advisory Council (OTCAC) sponsored the meal for the workshop.

Tom James, NRCS District Conservationist for the Wewoka office, provided an overview of NRCS programs and funding opportunities for producers.

The Engineering for Conservation Planning Course

On April 22-26, 2013, the 15th session of the Engineering for Conservation Planning training course (aka Engineering Bootcamp) was held at the Best Western Cimarron Hotel and at the USDA-ARS Hydraulics Laboratory in Stillwater. Eighteen students (1 District Conservationist, 7 Soil Conservationists, 2 Rangeland Management Specialists, 3 Soil Conservation Technicians, 2 Construction Inspectors, 1 Secretary, 1 OCC Employee, and 1 County Conservation District Employee) participated in the training course. During this week long course, they were introduced to many facets of Oklahoma NRCS engineering. For example, the students were taught basic surveying skills and introduced to five common conservation practices (Diversion, Terraces, Waterways, Ponds, and GSSs). Their knowledge was tested near the end of the course through a field review, affectionately known as the Conservation Olympics.

Part of the course was held at the USDA-ARS Hydraulics Laboratory, giving the students an opportunity to tour and observe some of the testing facilities at the lab. One of the highlights of the ARS Lab tour was seeing water flow through the Roller Compacted Concrete scale model flume.

The course had great participation from the students and the instructors. Without everyone's great participation and extra efforts, this course could not have been a success.

NRCS Participates at the US EPA Region 6 Tribal Nonpoint Source Workshop

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) participated at the US EPA Region 6 Tribal Nonpoint Source Workshop. The title of the workshop was Nonpoint Source Pollution Management and the Watershed Approach. The tribal workshop was held May 7 through May 9, 2013 in Tulsa, Oklahoma. Invitations were extended to all 39 Tribes of Oklahoma and tribes from New Mexico, Arkansas, Texas and Louisiana. Dr. Carol Crouch, NRCS American Indian and Alaska Native Special Emphasis Program Manager and District Conservationist for the NRCS Purcell field office, was selected as a panelist to share how NRCS is collaborating with tribes, tribal members and producers to effectively deliver "hands on" conservation workshops, program opportunities and technical assistance available for conservation planning. Dr. Crouch also presented how NRCS has developed strong partnerships in Indian Country through collaboration with tribes, tribal members and producers, USDA partners, state conservation agencies and the Oklahoma Tribal Conservation Advisory Council (OTCAC). Through collaboration NRCS has been able to identify the type of conservation workshops and training that is needed to address conservation issues or concerns in different geographic locations across the state. She also provided an overview of NRCS farm bill programs available to Tribes, tribal members and producers. There were twenty three tribes of Oklahoma and one tribe from Nevada, Nebraska, Kansas, Michigan and New Mexico in attendance.

Eastern Oklahoma Ag Trade Show

The Poteau, Stigler, and Wilburton NRCS offices partnering with the Conservation Districts in Haskell, Latimer, Leflore and Sequoyah Counties conducted their 7th Annual Eastern Oklahoma Ag Trade Show at the Leflore County Fairgrounds near Poteau on April 25.

The event attracted over 25 vendor booths and 200 attendees. Information was provided pertaining to agricultural equipment and supplies, financial assistance, farm bill programs and available USDA services. Speakers gave presentations about horticulture and rotational grazing topics as well as poultry topics for both under-graduate and graduate level continuing education credits.

Other partner's co-sponsoring the event included: Farm Service Agency, The Kerr Center for Sustainable Agriculture, the Oklahoma Tribal Conservation Advisory Council, OK Farms, OSU Cooperative Extension Service, OK Beef Council, OK Farm Bureau, Leflore County Cattlemen's Association, and KTCS 99.9.

Haskell County - Stigler Field Service Center

The Haskell County Conservation District with assistance from the Stigler NRCS staff conducted their 22nd Annual Fishing Clinic on May 9th for all 5th grade students in Haskell County. Due to rainy conditions the event was held at the Haskell County Fair barns in Stigler. There were about 220 students and teachers from four schools that attended the event. This event offered the opportunity to rotate through 10 minute learning stations teaching about fishing tackle identification, Oklahoma wildlife rules and regulations, casting instructions, and fish identification. The students from the rural schools attended the morning sessions and the Stigler school students attended the afternoon sessions. During the last hour of both the morning and afternoon sessions the students actually got to fish at the nearby Stigler City Lake. Each student went home with a "goodie bag" filled with various information and other items and a new rod and reel provided by a tremendous support from area businesses. Photo showing a student that actually caught a fish at the lake during the event.

This was the first time for many of the students to actually fish. Over 60 Earth Team volunteer hours were donated in conducting this very successful event.

DECLARATION OF WATERSHED STRUCTURE EMERGENCY

Under the provisions of the Oklahoma Public Competitive Bidding Act (Title 61 of the Oklahoma Statutes, Section 130 et. seq.), Mike Thralls, as chief administrative officer for the Oklahoma Conservation Commission, has the authority to declare an emergency.

Whenever the chief administrative officer declares an emergency, they shall notify the Oklahoma Conservation Commission and the State Construction Administrator, Division of Capitol Assets Management, Office of Management Enterprise Services, of the action within ten (10) days. The notification shall contain a statement of the reasons for the action, and shall be recorded in the official minutes of the Oklahoma Conservation Commission.

I herby declare the following emergency:

Emergency Number: OK 2013-05-31

Emergency Name: Cottonwood Creek Site #15

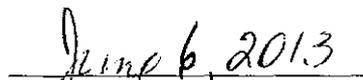

Reasons for the Emergency Declaration:

This project addressed an emergency situation involving significant damage to a watershed structure classified by the OWRB as a high hazard structure. During the rainfall event on May 31, 2013, the structure received significant damage, including but not limited to the erosion of the auxiliary channel resulting in the misdirection of the design flow of floodwaters. The depth and breadth of erosion was extensive and it is believed to be below the design elevation creating the potential release of stored sediment that could contain hazardous substances. As a consequence, the uncontrolled release of this sediment carried by subsequent floodwaters would reduce channel capacity downstream and could cause flooding and injury to multiple residential dwellings. It is important to repair this damage quickly to prevent the escape of the potentially hazardous sediment and to insure the health and safety of those individuals located downstream from this impaired structure.

Location:

This site is located in the Northwest Quarter (NW 1/4) of Section 28, Township 15 North, Range 5 West, Kingfisher County, Oklahoma, and specifically described by Northing and Easting Perimeter Control Points using the coordinate system NAD83 Oklahoma State Plane, North Zone, US foot.

DECLARATION OF ABANDONED COAL MINE EMERGENCY

Under the provisions of the Oklahoma Public Competitive Bidding Act (Title 61 - Section 130), Mike Thralls, as chief administrative officer for the Oklahoma Conservation Commission, has the authority to declare an emergency.

Whenever the chief administrative officer declares an emergency, he/she shall notify the Oklahoma Conservation Commission and the State Construction Administrator - Office of Management Enterprise Services (Division of Capitol Asset Management - DCA), of such action within 10 days. Such notification shall contain a statement of the reasons for the action, and shall be recorded in the official minutes of the Oklahoma Conservation Commission.

I hereby declare the following emergency:

Emergency Number: OK 2013-06-04

Emergency Name: Florence Yard

Reasons for Emergency Declaration:

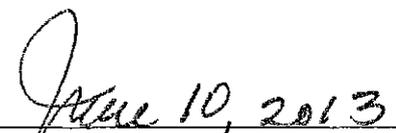

This project addresses a situation involving the sudden collapse of an abandoned underground coal mine creating a vertical opening (VO). The VO is approximately 3 feet in diameter by more than 16 feet deep and is open and dangerous. Mine water is within 2 feet of the surface. The VO is located in the yard of a residence in the city limits of Wilburton. There is heavy family activity and public foot traffic daily. Several businesses, homes, a hospital, and a nursing home are located within a half mile.

Location:

POLICIES RECOMMENDED BY OCC STAFF TO BE CONTINUED
FOR FISCAL YEAR 2014

1. All employee positions (District and Commission) that become vacant will be reviewed and will require justification before approval to fill the position; shared positions between 2 or more districts will be considered. Future employee allocations will be dependent on the level of legislative appropriations.
2. When an equipment manager position becomes vacant in districts, the position will transition to a non-benefitted position with a cash allocation for part-time help. The maximum non-benefitted part-time employment for district positions will remain 1599 hours.
3. Failure to perform audits and/or submit pre-claim payments (for retirement and insurance) within the established time-frame will result in OCC withholding payment of district claims until compliance is accomplished.
4. In order for a district to be eligible to continue receiving a personnel allocation from OCC, the district must perform annual performance evaluations on all staff.

As of June 19 the contractor has completed approximately 25 percent of the work in 44 percent of the contract time.

FY 2013 AML SIMPLIFIED GRANT - The following is the status report on the submitted projects:

1. Baumann-205 (Rogers County)

The authorization to proceed was received from the Office of Surface Mining on April 29, 2013.

This project is located approximately 1½ miles west of the town of Talala, Oklahoma (population 273). The hazards at the site are three hazardous water bodies (HWB) and approximately 8,000 linear feet of dangerous highwall (DH). The first HWB is located on the north end of the project and runs east to west along county road E 0340 Road and is within 60 to 75 feet of the road. The second and third HWBs extend north to south for one mile. The third and main water-filled strip pit includes three water-filled pits or "fingers" on the east side that are connected to the main water-filled strip pit. The DH averages 15 to 20 feet high and extends the full length of the strip pits, as well as the fingers. All the DH and HWB would be eliminated except for one finger in the southwest quarter of Section 32. This finger will be backgraded, eliminating the DH but keeping the water-filled pit.

There are several residences within a quarter mile of the site. The site is very accessible close to the town of Talala. The HWB and the DH are classified as Priority 2 AML hazards.

A prebid meeting was held June 27. The bid opening is scheduled for July 9.

AML EMERGENCY PROGRAM

Highway 1 (Pittsburg County)

This project was declared an emergency on May 29, 2013. The project addressed a situation involving the sudden collapse of an abandoned underground coal mine during a heavy rain event, creating a vertical opening (VO) in a highway ditch. The VO extended under the highway and had active erosion taking dirt deeper underground into the mine void underneath. The VO had an approximate surface diameter of 2 feet. The visible and measurable area is approximately 6.0 feet deep.

The VO started in the highway ditch and on the shoulder, then slanted under the highway driving surface. It was dangerous and there was a high probability of the void causing the highway to collapse, causing a hazardous highway condition.

The site is ½ miles east of Hartshorne on the south side of State Highway 1.

The project was completed on June 12, 2013, by Marks Construction, LLC, for $13,919.00.

Florence Yard (Latimer County)

The project was declared an emergency on June 10, 2013. The project addresses a situation involving the sudden collapse of an abandoned underground coal mine creating a vertical opening (VO). The VO is approximately 3 feet in diameter by more than 16 feet deep and is open and dangerous. Mine water is within 2 feet of the surface. The VO is located in the yard of a residence in the city limits of Wilburton. There is heavy family activity and public foot traffic daily. Several businesses, homes, a hospital, and a nursing home are located within a half mile.

The site is located at 306 SW 9th Street in Wilburton, Oklahoma.

Reclamation of the site should start the week of June 24.
