The Oklahoma Correctional Employee Memorial Foundation recently updated the grounds around the memorial with a much needed facelift in the form of new landscaping. The flower beds and the surrounding areas were designed and landscaped by Tony's Tree Plantation. This was made possible through employee donations for Pride Days. The foundation is very appreciative of those employees whose donations made these improvements possible. We would also like to thank Tony's Tree Plantation for their generous discount on the greenery. We encourage all staff to go and check out the changes.

There have been so many wonderful comments about the new landscape.

Here are just a few:

“Pretttyyyy!!!”

“They did such a wonderful job!”

“A beautiful landscape for our beautiful memorial.”
