The Cherokee Nation Regional Prevention Coordinator (RPC), in partnership with the Wagoner County Tobacco Use Prevention Coalition, Students Working Against Tobacco (SWAT) and the Wagoner Family Service Council conducted Tobacco Reward Reminder Visits (RRV's) this fall in Wagoner, Coweta and Porter.

RRV's are an evidence based prevention strategy to reduce youth access to tobacco by rewarding tobacco retailers who ID properly and refuse sale.

Coordinating representatives say RRV's are an opportunity to educate tobacco retailers about the risks and potential negative impact tobacco sales have on youth in the community.

"Regardless of whether ID is checked or money is exchanged, if a clerk puts tobacco in arm's reach of the minor decoy, rings up a price on the register and then communicates that price, it is counted as a sale," a prevention coalition spokesperson said. "It is the clerk's responsibility to properly check ID and refuse sale before retrieving tobacco products."

"Because youth are told to present their real ID, which shows that they are underage, the clerk only has to read the yellow box on the vertical ID. This yellow box tells the clerk the exact day, month and year the decoy will turn 18," she added.

Acceptable forms of ID include an Oklahoma state issued driver's license and identification card, U.S. passport, U.S. military ID and permanent resident card.

A college student ID should not be taken as the sole source of identifying a customer's age for the purpose of buying tobacco or alcohol.

Tribal ID cards may be taken if a business wants to accept them. However, the state of Oklahoma does not recognize them as a valid ID.

Of the twelve RRV's conducted, there were three attempts to sell tobacco to a minor decoy.

Coweta retailers who denied tobacco to a minor decoy were Walgreens #15756 and Walmart Supercenter # 374.

In Porter, Porter Country Store denied sale of tobacco to a minor.

Wagoner retailers who denied sale of tobacco to a minor were Murphy USA, Walgreens, Super Mini-Mart (former Shell), Maveric Mini-Mart #10, Fast Trax #6 and Fred's Grocery.

Retailers were reminded to follow state law prohibiting the sale of tobacco to youth under 18 years of age and received a packet of educational information to help store employees make wiser choices when selling tobacco products.
