MARY BRINKLEY, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, LEADINGAGE OKLAHOMA

Mary Eischen Brinkley took a ten-year "sabbatical" from her career to focus on raising her three sons. She discovered the profound impact books can have on the development of a child. The books she read daily have been a life-long influence for her sons. They fostered a mother-son "bond" that was the inspiration for her book, You Love Me, You Do! Her career is now dedicated to the care and services of the elderly as she serves as the executive director of LeadingAge Oklahoma. She is the proud grandmother of Ellie Marie, who shares her love of children's books.

MICHAEL BROSE, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, MENTAL HEALTH ASSOCIATION OKLAHOMA

Mike Brose grew up in Liberal, Kansas. He attended Oral Roberts University in Tulsa, receiving his Bachelor of Social Work in 1979. He then attended the University of Kansas, receiving his Master of Social Work in 1980. Mr. Brose and his wife moved to Tulsa following graduate studies where he has practiced as a licensed clinical social worker since that time. He has practiced in a variety of settings, including work with adults affected by serious mental illness, children's mental health, juvenile justice, medical social work, and geriatric mental health. He worked at St. John Medical Center in Tulsa from 1987 to 1993 as the Director of the Department of Family Therapy. Since that time, Mr. Brose has served as the executive director of the Mental Health Association Oklahoma, a statewide organization that focuses on mental health prevention in school-based settings, mental health advocacy and education, development of programs focused on enhancing recovery opportunities for adults affected by mental illness and substance abuse, and housing development for individuals who are homeless or at threat to become homeless.
