Executive Seminar: Prevention of, Response to, and Recovery from Campus Emergencies

Norman, OK
March 1-2, 2011

Course Overview: Course participants will be allowed to observe a developing incident and respond in a manner that would be consistent with currently established campus and jurisdictional emergency operations procedures. Successful prevention of, deterrence, response to, and recovery from incidents within the campus community are contingent upon campus and community leaders recognizing beforehand the importance of an integrated approach. This holistic approach must recognize that successful nationally accepted emergency management principles used during responses to high consequence events can and will also work when dealing with campus emergencies. Recent national events have demonstrated that campuses are not exempt from dealing with crises and threats.

Prerequisites: Participants should be familiar with their respective roles and responsibilities with regard to emergency preparedness planning, the response to campus emergencies, and related post incident activities and consequences.

Participant Audience: This class is designed for executive campus leaders, faculty governance, student governance, campus public safety departments, campus health/medical and mental health services, campus public affairs, local law enforcement and public safety agencies, and jurisdictional public information officers at community colleges, colleges, and universities.
