

Oklahoma
Commission
on the Status of Women

OKLAHOMA
HISTORY
CENTER

2011 Oklahoma Women's Hall of Fame Inductees and Presenters

L-R Patty Bryant-OCSW Commissioner, Cindy Cason, Dr. Laura Boyd-2011 Inductee

Oklahoma

Student Art Co

Faces of Okla

Notable Oklahomans & The

2011 Oklahoma Women's Hall of Fame Inductee

Joy D. Culbreath

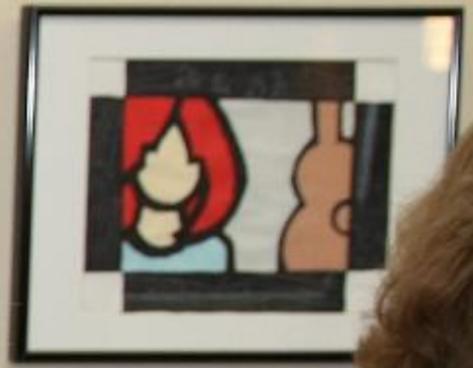

Joy D. Culbreath attended Southeastern Oklahoma University (1963), receiving a bachelor's degree in Education and Elementary Education, Master of Education, and Master of Administration. In 1968, she began a 35-year career with the Choctaw Nation of Oklahoma, providing services for students from kindergarten through high school (the federal ERIC program). Ms. Culbreath's new career with the Choctaw Nation of Oklahoma was to create an adult education program. Over the years, she created 14 different education programs, including early childhood programs. In 1992, the Chief of the Choctaw Nation asked Ms. Culbreath to establish a life-long learning program for the Choctaw Nation. She took the program to public schools, on college campuses, and on the internet, saving the lives of many generations. Ms. Culbreath was named in 2010 to serve on the National Hall of Fame Committee. She is a member of the church and the community.

Fred Henry
Governor of Oklahoma
1957-1961

L-R Gregory E. Pyle-Chief of the Choctaw Nation, Joy Culbreath-2011 Inductee

2011 Oklahoma Women's Hall of Fame Inductee

Marcia J. Mitchell

Marcia J. Mitchell recognized for her many years of service to the industry. Her career changed the lives of thousands of people. She is a member of the Little Light Society in the capacity of a national advisor. Her leadership and dedication to the industry from China, to the world in Tulsa to bring this home country. Her special journey to her home in Tulsa, which many know...

L-R Marcia Mitchell-2011 Inductee, Representative Pam Peterson-OCSW Commissioner

Quintin Parrott
1887-1958
"The Spirit"
Let Flies

2011 Oklahoma Women's Hall of Fame Inductee

Ardina R. Moore

Ardina R. Moore came into the world known as "He-shoo-lee-toe," Eagle Feather that Gets Up! The eldest grandchild of Mammie and Chief Victor Griffin, the last Chief of the Osage Tribe, her grandfather insisted to her the need for education so he could see that she was the only one the tribe could survive. A 1951 graduate of Northeastern State University, Ms. Moore became involved with tribal government and was elected to the Osage Tribal Business Committee. Ms. Moore is known as a pioneer for Native women, taking on leadership roles within the Osage and Ojibwe Tribes, owning a successful business, and leading the fight on issues dealing with tribal land. She developed and implemented an education curriculum designed to preserve the endangered Osage language for future generations. Ms. Moore provides professional consultation and education throughout the United States on behalf of the Osage Tribe, including but not limited to the Bureau of Indian Affairs, state legislatures, women's groups, museums, schools, colleges, designers, artists, architects, caregivers, preservation officers, and the National Park Service.

Oklahoma
Commission on the Status of Women

L-R Ardina Moore-2011 Inductee, Florence Whitecrow-Mathews

L-R Chancellor Glen D. Johnson Jr., Dr. Cindy Ross-2011 Inductee, Dr. Fern Bowling-OCSW Commissioner

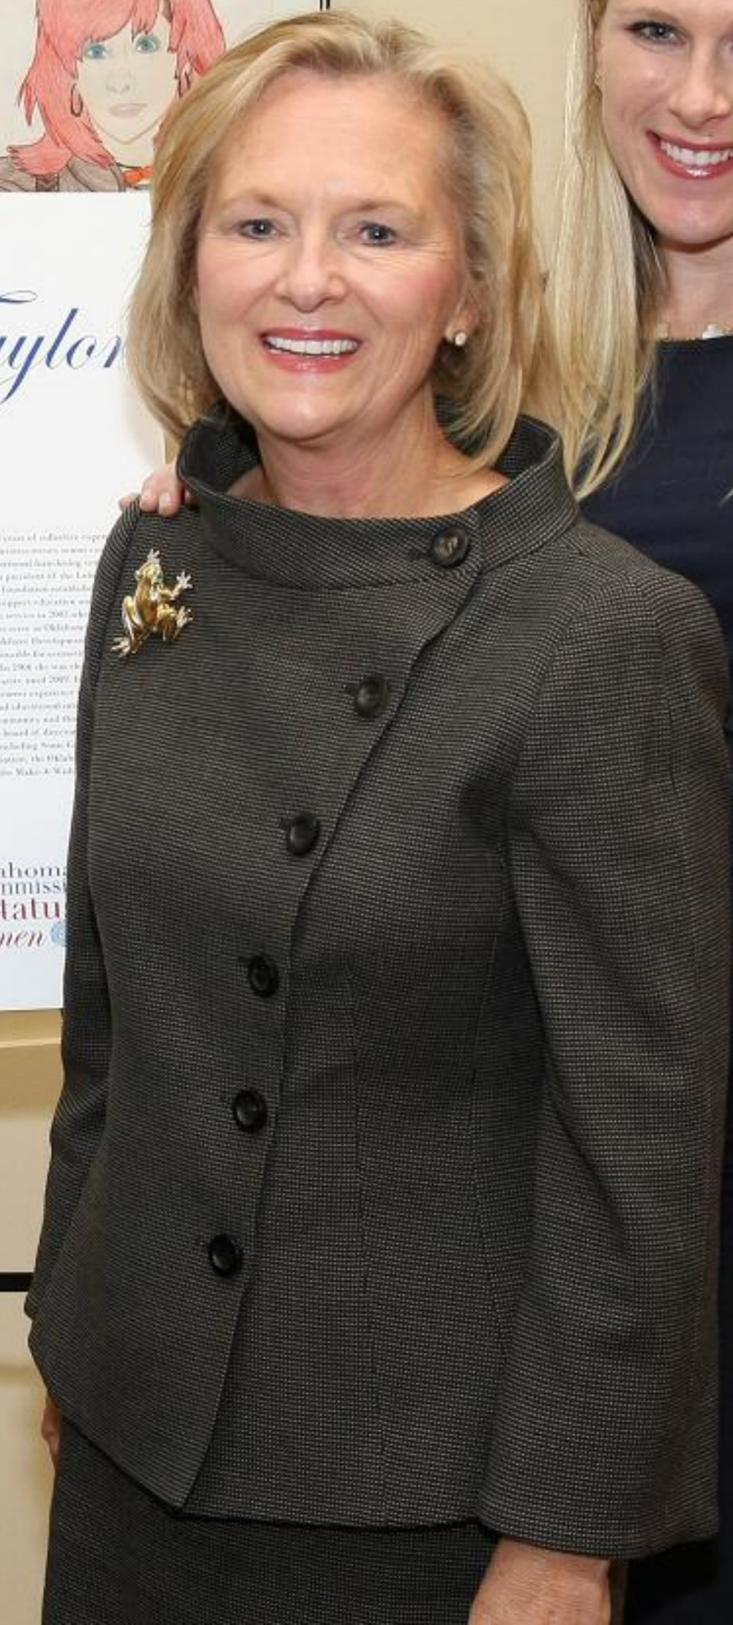

2011 Oklahoma Women's Hall of Fame Inductee

Kathryn L. Taylor

Kathryn L. Taylor has over 30 years of industry experience as a lawyer, regulator, executive, business owner, and general counsel for an international banking corporation. From 1995 to 2001, she served as president of the Kathryn Taylor Foundation, a charitable foundation established in honor of her father. She has received public service awards from Governor Henry to serve on Oklahoma's Commission on Tourism and Wildlife Development. Kathryn has been a past president of the Oklahoma State Bar Association and is currently a member of the Oklahoma State Bar Association. She is also a past president of the Oklahoma Heritage Association, the Oklahoma Community and Justice, and the Oklahoma Women's Hall of Fame.

Oklahoma
Commission
on the Statue
of
Women

L-R Lou Kohlman-OCSW Commissioner, Kathryn Taylor-2011 Inductee, Elizabeth Ellison

