

Megan (Meg) Weinkauf is the CFO of Unlock Freedom, a national non-profit out of Tulsa, Oklahoma working to combat human trafficking through educational prevention and awareness. Meg grew up in Northwest Arkansas and attended the University of Arkansas, graduating with her Bachelors of Accountancy with a minor in Marketing. Currently, she is a student at the Jack Welch Management Institute working towards her Master's in Business Administration and serves as an international student advisory board member. She began her accounting career during college and had the opportunity to work within various industries over the last twelve years'. Meg is actively involved serving on the Tulsa Area United Way Emerging Leaders Society Steering Committee, Advocacy Planning Committee, and Oklahoma Commission on the Status of Women Advisory Council. She is a mentor through Women in Recovery with the United Way Women's Leadership Council, 4Word Women Co-Leader, and Propel Women Leader. Meg sincerely enjoys spending time with her husband, three dogs, family and friends. Overall, she is passionate about living life with meaning and purpose.