COMMISSIONER MARK COSTELLO TO SPEAK AT OK SAFETY COUNCIL NETWORK LUNCH

Oklahoma City – Commissioner Mark Costello of the Oklahoma Department of Labor has been invited to speak at the Oklahoma Safety Council Network Lunch in Oklahoma City on July 20th at 11:30 pm. The lunch is held monthly at the Golden Corral located at 5702 NW Expressway between Meridian and MacArthur on NW Expressway.

Commissioner Costello plans on speaking about safety programs the Department of Labor offers and will touch on Worker's Compensation.

Mark Costello became Oklahoma's Commissioner of Labor on January 10. A fourth generation Oklahoman, Commissioner Costello graduated from College High in Bartlesville and received his undergraduate degree in 1980 from the University of Kansas. He and his wife Cathy live in Edmond and have five children: Christian, Ian, Anna Marie, Caitlin and Kolbe.

Mark has founded several technology based companies which have resulted in scores of good jobs and hundreds of millions of dollars in revenue. A fiscal conservative, Commissioner Costello supports legislative efforts to reduce government bureaucracy, and works hard to promote private-sector job creation.
