DrillRight Technologies to Receive SHARP Certification, Presented by Labor Commissioner Mark Costello

Oklahoma City – DrillRight Technologies, a local drilling equipment and service company, recently achieved the Safety and Health Achievement Recognition Program (SHARP) status from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA). Labor Commissioner Mark Costello will present the award to Darrell Husted, President of DrillRight, during a luncheon on January 24 at the DrillRight offices in south Oklahoma City.

Incorporated in 1998, DrillRight has become the second largest independent directional drilling company in the nation. From one employee and two drillers to its current size, DrillRight has grown significantly due to the company allowing its employees and contractors to take ownership of their jobs.

“Since our beginning in 1998, one of our core priorities has been safety,” Husted said. “We are now able to commend that hard work, as we become SHARP certified. Our employees and contractors have played a large role throughout the certification process. Each day their integrity and responsibility shine throughout the workplace.”

The Safety and Health Achievement Recognition Program (SHARP) recognizes employers who operate at their worksites exemplary safety and health programs that result in the immediate and long-term prevention of job-related injuries and illnesses.

“SHARP signifies that a business is a model for safety and health,” Commissioner Costello said. “With the real interest in the health and safety of its employees, DrillRight clearly deserves this award. SHARP is a rigorous program and takes commitment from both the employees and management.”
