

OKLAHOMA DISASTER RECOVERY PROJECT

The Oklahoma Disaster Recovery Project is a collaboration of agencies, including but not limited to, American Red Cross, Catholic Charities, The Salvation Army, Society of St. Vincent de Paul, and The Oklahoma United Methodist Church to conduct disaster case management for individuals and families in need of long term recovery. As described below, the case management process includes identifying resources in the community to meet the needs of clients. Our partnership extends to all service organizations that have been and will continue to be here for the communities impacted and provide vital services to individuals and families affected by the recent storms. Many agencies are working together in a coordinated effort to support our state during this difficult time and will be here over the months and years to come to help the community recover and rebuild.

Long-term Recovery:

Recovery is that time following a disaster in which agencies and organizations help affected persons and communities to develop and implement plans and structures for an extended recovery over a period of time. Recovery to each disaster is unique and the long-term recovery (going beyond the relief and initial cleanup to actual rebuilding of homes and lives) may last weeks or years.
