

SCOTT MEACHAM
OKLAHOMA STATE TREASURER

Biographical Information

Scott Meacham is the 17th State Treasurer of Oklahoma, serving the citizens of Oklahoma in that capacity since June 1, 2005.

In addition to his duties as State Treasurer, he serves on the governor's cabinet as Secretary for Finance and Revenue. In this capacity, he is the governor's primary financial and budget advisor and serves as the governor's chief negotiator on budget, legislative and tribal matters as well as other issues.

Meacham has directed modernization of the state's investment portfolio and has more than tripled state investment income while minimizing risk on the state's investments.

Due to Meacham's renegotiation of contracts for state financial services, the state is saving millions of dollars each year.

Meacham served as State Finance Director prior to becoming Treasurer. As finance director, he directed the state's budget through the budget crises in 2003.

Meacham, a certified financial planner, formerly served as Chief Executive Officer of First National Bank & Trust of Elk City. Under his leadership, the bank more than doubled in size and saw its profits increase by more than 150 percent.

Meacham is a fifth generation Oklahoman and a graduate of Chickasha High School and the University of Oklahoma. He holds a bachelor's degree in finance, a Masters of Business Administration and a law degree.

Meacham, his wife, Susan, and their four children, Trevor, Evan, Kady and Lucas, make their home in Edmond. They attend Crossings Community Church in Oklahoma City.
